Program Description

The broadcasting aspect of the communication arts section provides students with opportunities to manage and operate actual broadcast facilities. The program, however, also underscores the importance of mass communication theories and their application to the broadcasting profession(s). Writing and creative skills are also emphasized. Some of the fundamental aspects of these skills and theories are taught through a core curriculum, which both journalism and broadcasting students take. Subsequent courses in the broadcasting major cover more specific areas, such as TV and radio production, script writing, broadcast journalism and broadcast management.

Scholarships and Financial Aid

Wayne State College is committed to providing a quality, affordable education for its students. There are several types of financial assistance available for Wayne State students, including grants, loans, work-study and scholarships. The aid packages are composed of money from Pell grants, SEOG grants, SSIG grants, Perkins loans, Stafford student loans, PLUS loans and a variety of scholarships. Contact the Financial Aid Office at (402) 375-7230 for further information.

The following scholarships are available through the Communication Arts Department:

Special Abilities Scholarships are offered to outstanding majors
Jack E. Backer Scholarship

Special Offerings

CNA 220/420 -- The courses provide opportunities to gain first-hand experience in operating radio and TV stations. Students assume a variety of responsibilities in serving as management and staff of KWSC-FM (campus radio station, 91.9 MHz) and KWSC-TV (Channel 24 on Jones Intercable, Wayne).

Internships at radio and TV stations, or through other communication organizations are available. These internships can be credited toward the student's major.
