Bagels Fix Everything

No, bagels don’t really fix everything. However, I believe they do help. You are probably aware that the WSC Library now hosts a new Einstein Bagels franchise in Jitters. Perhaps you have visited it. There are certainly a growing group of regular customers. To say Einstein’s has been a commercial success would be an extreme understatement.

But, you say, bagels won’t improve student test scores, won’t result in better research papers, and don’t contribute to creating a suitably serious scholarly environment. How do bagels fit into the library’s mission? I would argue that the fit is excellent.

A good academic library strives to assist students in their learning process, but providing research assistance and a quiet place to study isn’t enough. A good library also needs to help build and engage a campus community, and few things help build community more than eating and learning together. Conversation over food breaks down barriers and encourages us to exchange ideas. Community membership helps enhance a feeling of belonging, increases confidence and engagement, and contributes to (you’ve heard this word before) retention.

Retention and a sense of community isn’t just a student issue. Faculty and staff retention is also important, and sometimes overlooked. Isolation can be an issue for faculty and staff just as it is for students. So as winter approaches and the weather gets worse, resist the urge to hide out in the shelter of your office. Come to the library, visit with students and colleagues, learn a little more about the world, and yes, have a bagel.

  Library Director
Conn Library Welcomes Hayley Zamzow

Hello, my name is Hayley Zamzow. I am the new night Library Technician here at Conn Library. I’ve had the pleasure of working here since July of 2019. With a Library Science major and English minor from the University of Nebraska at Omaha, this job has been the perfect opportunity for me to learn more about the inner workings of a wonderful (and beautiful, I might add) library. Outside of the library, I am a voracious reader with a black belt in Taekwondo who enjoys coffee, nature and family time.

APA 7th Edition is Here!

It has been 10 years since the latest edition of the APA Style Manual was published and the way we access information has changed a great deal in that time. This edition addresses those changes and many more.

A few highlights:

- New Student Title Page Template
- Use of One Space After a Period at the End of a Sentence
- Updated Guidelines on Age, Disability, Gender, Racial & Ethnic Identity, and Sexual Orientation
- Simplified In-Text Citations for works with Three or More Authors
- Standardization of DOIs and URLs
- Addition of Blogs as Periodicals
- Removal of Publisher Locations for Books
- Updated formats for Websites, Social Media & Streaming Videos

Two Publication Manuals for the new seventh edition are on reserve at the Circulation Desk. New APA 7th Edition Citation Style Overview handouts are also available in the display case across from Einstein Bagels and online on our APA Research Guide at libguides.wsc.edu/APA.

Please note that Study Rooms can only be reserved up to 2 weeks in advance.
Place Your Course Materials on Reserve

Have you heard about our course reserves program?

Faculty may place materials on reserve for student use. This ensures that all students in a class have access to the materials regardless of cost or situation.

This includes any published material supplied by the faculty member (such as textbooks, workbooks, out-of-print materials) or materials created by the professor for the course (such as review questions, exams, etc.). The library can also place on reserve library-owned materials including periodicals and videos. Just bring the materials to the main floor Circulation Desk and our staff will help you fill out a short form.

Materials placed on reserve are available for checkout at the Circulation Desk on the main floor of the library. Checkout periods can be for 1 hour, 2 hours, 1 day or 3 days as determined by the faculty member.

Did You Know You Can Renew Items ONLINE?

Just select the MY LIBRARY link under the DISCOVERY search box on the library homepage. Login with your name and Campus ID number from your CAT CARD. Then go to your Checked Out list and select the Renew box.

The Neihardt Club

While the name and preeminence of John G. Neihardt are certainly well-known on campus, the existence of the John G. Neihardt Club has largely been forgotten. The club first met on July 30, 1920. It was “founded in honor of John G. Neihardt, poet-laureate of Nebraska and an Alumnus of [Wayne State Teachers College], and has as its purpose the study of the man and his works.” (1927 Spizzerinktum). Membership was not limited to the Wayne State community; it extended throughout the United States and even into Europe.

Most of the club’s records are lost; however, we do know some activities of the club from other sources including the annual “Neihardt Edition” of The Goldenrod. These issues that ran from 1920 through 1933 printed excerpts from his poetry and featured stories about John G. Neihardt and the Club.

The Club spearheaded campaigns to erect two monuments. In 1923 a monument was erected on the Grand River in South Dakota. It was a memorial to Hugh Glass, who, 100 years earlier, was left to die at that spot by his companions, but survived. His story is told in Neihardt’s poem, “The Song of Hugh Glass.”

The second monument can be found in Bressler Park in Wayne. Dedicated in 1925, the bronze plaques on the monument recognize the achievements of the poet and include a quote from his “The Poet’s Town.”

The Club seems to have ceased to exist about 1930 as it is not mentioned after that year.
